That there are being "blind tigers" operated in different parts of the city, by some few whites as well as by scores of negroes, is an undisputed fact, but how to get sufficient proof on the offenders has been quite a perplexing problem.

There have been a number of arrests, from time to time, but few convictions, as it is almost impossible to get enough evidence to werrant the offender even being bound

With the exception of the white man Mattox, who is now serving out a sentence on the county read, and a few negroes, very few convicsions have been accomplished, notwithstanding this business has been going on ever since prohibition went into effect, and the further fact that many cases have been sent to court.

But the Anti-Saloon League, always on the alert, never tiring, and at no time giving up in despair the noble work they have undertaken, have determined that this nefarious business should be broken up, have started out right to accomplish their purpose by employing the services of a detective.
